1971 in Princeton Goes into History as the Year of the Raingod

In 1971, Princeton discovered that it's a growing town: the 1970 census figures, produced early in the year, showed 12,311 people in the Borough, slightly outdistanced by 13,651 across That Line in the Township.

In this single community of 25,000-plus, two main strands of news wove in and out of life during the year — Ecology and Drugs. Sadly, drugs had been in the 1970 news as well, but concerned Princeton residents, spent the year working to see that drugs made less news in 1972 than they had in the past.

Ecology? Well, even the ecologists and environmentalists couldn't hold back the biggest Princeton news story of 1971 — the August 27-28 flood, caused by rains that dumped 10.95 inches of rain on the town in 24 hours.

Afterwards, it was called "a hundred-year storm," meaning we wouldn't see its like again for a century (if we were lucky), but some scientists were even more optimistic and called it a "two-hundred year storm."

Anyhow, remember how your basement looked? Remember the flooded intersections, right in the heart of town? Remember mild-mannered Stony Brook, rampant in its channel like some enraged giant, pouring its current across Rosedale Road? And Harry's Brook.

Were your tax records awash in the thousands of dollars' worth of damage done to the Township Tax Office? Did you miss the Giants-Eagles game because of muddy water swirling around your car-buretor?

In the Township, hardest hit by the flood, a new Flood Control Commission was formed, and the municipality decided to apply for admission to the national flood insurance program. Householders could apply for disaster loans — and everybody hoped it wouldn't happen again for 200 years.

Wet summer and fall kept the leaves from turning, and in 1971 Princeton had an eerie green autumn, without the usual flamboyance of dogwood, maple and sumac.

The non-returnable bottle . . . was it a symbol in 1971? Dedicated, articulate and supremely well-informed Princeton citizens pushed for local ordinances prohibiting the sale of bottles that have to be thrown away.

Municipal officials in both parties supported a state-wide measure (although the Borough's Mayor Robert W. Cawley observed wryly, "Can you imagine anybody in Newark getting excited about re-cycling?") and after several public hearings in which ecologists exchanged views with soft-drink and beer companies, a ban-the-non-returnable law failed to pass Council. The Township, waiting in the wings for the Borough's action, quietly withdrew.

Trash or Treasure? Throughout the year, starting in February, the Conservation Coalition ran a series of re-cycling Saturdays. "Mountains of material arrived by car, by the armload and in bicycle baskets," read TOWN TOPICS' story.

In one collection, eight tons of glass, nine tons of paper and a thousand pounds of aluminum were tured in for re-processing. But the Coalition announced, as the year ended, that it was giving up its collection Saturdays, hoping the municipalities would take over the job.

Friends of the Princeton Environment, formed in the spring, drew hundreds of people to its membership list. An active group, the Friends, in August before the flood, protested the re-channeling of Harry's Brook, warning of "unfortunate erosion, silting and other problems." Whether re-channeling would have lessened flood damage, is still probably an unanswered question.

Ecologically, the biggest news came from Princeton University which got out pail and shovel and prepared to scrape the bottom of Lake Carnegie clean. Cost: $1 million. Schedule: a January start, for a six-months' job.

The lake, built 65 years ago with money from Andrew Carnegie, hasn't been dredged since 1937. Ecologists said fine, but how can we keep it from filling up again?

Sewers in the News. As the year ended and a new one began, conservationists were concentrating on the new Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, formed in 1971 by six towns — the two Princetons, the two Hopewells, West Windsor and Pennington — to work out a regional solution to alarming sewerage problems.

Conservationists want to explore more thoroughly the question of impact; engineers and many residents of polluted areas are eager and anxious to move ahead now.

It all goes back to those census figures and the climbing growth of Princeton and its neighbors. Plainsboro, for example, is looking ahead to a 1972 in which the first steps will be taken toward a giant development for 5,000 families.

Locally, residents in Princeton Township were instrumental in calling a halt to a certain kind of growth. Their protests brought down the proposed office building called North Square — killed in March by a 3-2 vote of Township Committee. The developer appealed, but Superior Court dismissed the case because a new zoning amendment, passed by the Township in October, eliminated office buildings in that zone.

The last of North Square? The Township's Planning Board is re-studying the whole question of office buildings — 1972 may tell a different story.

In still another part of town, Princeton's residents also spoke strongly about the kind of neighborhood they want to live in, and the Borough Zoning Board denied the OK Bar permission to re-open. The case is now in the courts.

The ecology of human beings was an anguished concern in the Princeton of 1971. Drugs continued to take their young toll: early in the summer, one death was attributed to overdose; later, methadone itself, often regarded as a palliative for heroin addiction, took the life of a young Princeton resident.

Almost in panic, Princeton residents formed themselves into groups, hoping to find something, anything, that could solve the drug problem. Here is the line-up:

The Child Guidance Project ("291 Witherspoon"). Formed in 1970 under the Child Guidance Center of Mercer County, with a small professional staff, funded by Borough, Township and United Fund. As 1971 ended, Child Guidance announced that the Project would close down because there wasn't enough money.

The Princeton Drug Committee. A group of five adults and five young people, appointed on the advice of the Council of Community Services' Youth Concerns Committee's drug committee.

The Institute for Applied Psychotherapy. Brought into Princeton by the drug committee named above. IAP consists of young people who are "peers" of Princeton troubled young drug users, only a few years older than they, but with specialized training.

The Committee of Ten. Made up of youth workers, including Bill Kight, Len Brown, Florence Burke, Jerry Saunders, Dr. Shirley Van Vercy. They have offered co-ordinating, evaluating and planning expertise to the community.

The Intergovernmental Coordinating Committee for Drug Abuse Prevention. Formed by Borough Council and Township Committee and consisting of a Borough Councilman, a Township Committeeman, and School Board member, one member from each Board of Health form the nucleus of this official body. Three other members may be named.

But 1971 wasn't all grim in Princeton. Perhaps the best day of the year came about half-way through, when the Princeton Arts Council held

SIGN OF INFLATION: George Washington said he couldn't tell a lie, but there was something quite phony about these "$20" bills which circulated briefly in Princeton one day this fall. Singles with "20" pasted in each corner were used in somewhat illegal fashion in an effort to lower the high cost of living.

Music for All. Folk-guitarists strolled about, some of them playing for their own pleasure, others entertaining the other strollers.

Paintings, music, a rock band, puppets...even an invited swarm of bees contributed to the pleasure of the warm, springlike day. The Arts Council has promised another, for 1972.

Night swimming was a recreational activity that never quite got off the diving board. After a bid for $31,565 chilled the water, the project was set aside.

Although McCarter closed its repertory season in the spring, for a one-year's sabbatical,

STUDENTS REGISTER TO VOTE: Three Princeton University students went to Borough Hall in September to register as Borough voters. The 1971 elections gave 18-year-olds the vote, and also, in Princeton, allowed students to vote locally for the first time in more than 40 years.

the autumn scene was lively and inventive. McCarter itself presented Broadway and off-Broadway programs; the University's Triangle Club, renowned since the days of Booth Tarkington, gave one of its most sparkling shows — "Cracked Ice" (due in again this New Year's Day at 8 p.m.) And the annual Princeton Junction-and-Back musical broke every record on the shelf: "Fiddler on the Roof" will be a hard one to beat in '72.

Youth Center Thrives. A new group of artists brought exciting black culture to the Princeton Youth Center. Music, drama, art, poetry — the Center's offerings in 1971 were presented with skill and imagination. "Tambourines to Glory," the most recent, is an example of Center verve and creativity.

Kids benefitted unexpectedly from a surprising surge in theatre for children. The Street Theatre, formed this summer to brighten the playgrounds, has a fall and winter production and promises to be back next summer as a Street Theatre again.

The Creative Theatre for Youth is another. Both these groups are composed of young actors and producers fascinated by the idea of opening the door of the theatre world to children.

Princeton's "Madison Avenue" of art galleries continued to grow. A few years ago, there was almost nothing but 1971 saw continuing growth and sophistication in art in Princeton, both in commercial galleries and the production of top-quality art by Princeton residents.

Young people found their fun this year in the new "Flight Two," named for its second-floor location on Nassau Street. Backed by the Council of Community Services at first, now shakily on its own, Flight Two gives kids a chance to run the show, learn hard at first hand about adult ways (that summer rock concert in Marquand Park drew more irate residents to Borough Hall than a passel of $4 parking tickets.)

"My Opinion Is..." For a lot of Princeton residents, the relish and recreation in life comes from community participation, frequently active, vocal and contentious.

Yes, schools went right on making noisy news. In 1970, TOWN TOPICS' Year-End Review observed that "controversy swirled around Superintendent McPherson...we prophesy he'll be in the 1971 news, too."

And indeed he was. A petition signed by some 1,400 residents of the two Princetons and West Windsor asked for his resignation, but the Board of Education declined the petition's request and Dr. McPherson remains to make news in '72.

A dynamic new principal came to Princeton High — pipe-smoking Patricia Wertheimer, who found herself right in the middle of racial, disciplinary and political problems before she'd had time to report to the Principal's Office.

The suspension from the high school football team of a black player was the big race story of the year, and as TOWN TOPICS' sports reporter observed, it was a game "with many losers and no winners."

The young athlete was restored to the team after a long series of negotiations among coaches, administrators and students, but he never was sent in to play in a game.

Mule Train Here. The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, heir to Martin Luther King Jr., took his mule train (minus one that died en route) down Nassau Street and later spoke to an audience of 500 in the First Baptist Church.

Cross-burning, an anachronism in 1971's Princeton, occurred twice in February. The three culprits were caught.

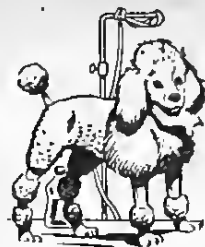

From a newer corner of the civil rights field came the charges of NOW — the National Organization for Women — that Princeton University practiced sex discrimination in personnel policies.

One of Princeton's most nagging harassments — traffic — continued into 1971 and probably will into 1972. A new Joint Transportation Commission, formed in January, is still working on ways to provide bus service.

The First National Bank began busing employees in from outlying parking spaces, and when the Borough told workers around town to "park and walk," to offices from outlying all-day meters, the howl of the blisters echoed in Borough Hall.

The other persistent blister — an ever-rising tax bill — just kept on feeling the rub. In the Township re-assessment promised to equalize the tax

It Will Be a Republican Year in Borough Hall

A FOUR-YEAR FIRST: When Mayor Robert Cawley (center) begins a new term at Saturday's reorganization meeting of Borough Council, he will serve for four years under a new State law. Until now, the mayoralty term was two years. Flanking him are the incoming Republican Councilmen, Thomas Cawley (left) and Arthur Morgan.

TOPICS Of The Town

CONTESTS!

In School Board Election. Six candidates have filed for the two vacant Township seats on the Princeton Regional School Board, and two for the Borough's single vacancy.

If any candidate changes his mind, this Thursday at 4 p.m. is the deadline for withdrawing.

In the Borough race, a slight irregularity in one petition was corrected before any challenge could be made. The petition of Eric Craig, 173 Witherspoon, bore the certification signature of Len Brown, who is assistant director of the Princeton Youth Center, but a resident of Hightstown.

The matter was brought to the attention of William Evans, school board secretary, by a telephone caller. Mr. Evans informed Mr. Brown of the irregularity, and a Princeton resident who had signed the Craig petition replaced Mr. Brown as certifier.

Mr. Craig's sole opponent will be incumbent board member Mrs. Kathleen Edwards, 25 Green Street.

In the Township, incumbents Winthrop Pike, 101 Leabrook Lane, and Philip Cruickshank, 211 Dodds Lane, have both filed for re-election. Mr. Pike for a third term, Dr. Cruickshank for a second.

Others filing for the two available seats are Frank Wells, 36 Birch Avenue; T. C. Allen, 310 Jefferson Road, who ran unsuccessfully for the board last year; Mrs. Barbara Schleyer, 18 Wheatshaf Lane and Jerome Gumbiner, 536 Prospect Avenue.

burden, but nobody promised a less expensive way of life. A state bill that could have removed all the University's eating clubs from the Borough's tax rolls, was amended — just in time.

Law makers in Princeton were mostly Democrats in 1971 — a major and historic change for both Borough and Township. But November fortunes overturned that majority, and the Republicans will be back on New Year's Day.

Students Were Voters. Student Voters, regarded with unease and apprehension by campaigners in both parties, didn't seem to make much difference in the final tally.

If traffic and taxes were painful, so was the lack of housing. In 1971, Princeton Community Housing finally made it through all the governing bodies, with plans for 240 units of low and middle-income housing clustered in a rocky woodland in the Township.

Opponents to the project hoped to have it subjected to public referendum, but they were defeated.

A comic-opera feud developed between the Regional Planning Board and George Sternlieb, the housing expert, when Dr. Sternlieb scooped the board by publishing a board-commissioned housing survey of Princeton. His survey showed that 6,597 units would be "in demand" by 1975, but the Planning Board hastened to add "we don't want a CITY!"

Then the University stepped in and announced, in all its majesty, that it will provide 1,500 units of low and middle-income housing for the community, the first 276 to be built soon in the Springdale area.

Who Will Buy? At the same time, the University surprised the town and put Palmer

MISSING: Laura Carpi's murder was the big crime story in Princeton in 1971.

Square on the block, offering its components to the highest and best bidder if one comes around.

Earlier, the University said it had examined the cupboard, found it bare, and decided to abandon a $3-million plan to develop a nice little plaza around the former Princeton Inn (now a dormitory) and the Penn Central railroad station.

But a new eight-unit dormitory with apartments for students, will indeed be built, and although austerity forced the University to scale down salary increases and faculty size, the institution's deficit dropped by $1 million. Good news for any hard pressed property-owner.

Financial troubles plagued Princeton Hospital, too. It closed a 34-bed unit and dropped about 20-25 employees because of operating — pardon the pun — losses.

The World of Sport. It was not a year marked by major success for Princeton University in the world of athletics. The Tigers won the Ivy League wrestling championship and the Eastern Association title in tennis, as well as the Rollins College Tournament in baseball.

During the summer, Brian Taylor captained the U.S. basketball team in the Pan American Games, in which swimmer Charlie Campbell won a gold medal in the backstroke. Hank Bjorklund set a career record for yards gained rushing, breaking Dick Kazmaier's old mark, but the Princeton football team completed a second successive mediocre season, winning only 4 out of its 9 games.

The Princeton High School football team made news in a negative fashion when it failed, for the first time in its history, to win a single game. Coach Dick Wood and his entire coaching staff continued to make news off the sport pages when they became embroiled with the school administration and school board over the dismissal of a black football player for cursing at a coach. At year's end, discipline of athletes was in the hands of the school principal and it seemed inevitable that continued friction would spill over into 1972.

The PHS basketball team got off to a poor 1-5 start, and Larry Ivan, after beginning his fifth season, decided to call it quits in the last week of the year (see page 27).

Wrestling, hockey, lacrosse, baseball and track all had losing seasons, although there was a renaissance in girls track under the leadership of coach Lamont Fletcher.

Tennis continued to be the winningest sport at PHS as Bill Humes guided his Little Tigers to a 16-1 record, the only loss coming against Milburn in the state tournament. Angelo Arcaro won the freshman state wrestling crown in the 168-pound class.

On the Business Scene. Business in Princeton could hardly be said to boom in '71, with frightening layoffs from RCA and other giants. One of the town's long-time shops, Mayme Mead, quietly closed its doors.

But in the fall, came the announcement of the first new bank in Princeton in 60 years. The New Jersey Bancorporation (New Jersey National is its subsidiary) plans a bank on the Edmund Cook property when Federal approval comes through.

Last spring, a cherished 40-year-old institution wound slowly to a halt: the Walker-Gordon Rotolactor, a kind of carousel on which generations of cows had been milked. Walker-Gordon was converting from milk to beef.

In a reflection of the national business scene, First National Bank and Nassau Savings and Loan decreased their interest rates on savings accounts by 1/2% because of the decline in mortgage interest rates.

Princeton Bank and Trust formed a new holding company with American National Bank and Trust of Morristown, and First National (Gimbel's to PB & T's Macy's) went with United Jersey Banks.

Goheen to Bow Out. If institutions are important in a community year, people are even more so. In Princeton, in 1971, the man who made news was Robert F. Goheen, who announced in April that he will resign next June as President of Princeton University. His successor, William Bowen, was named early this December.

"The fun outweighs the headaches," Dr. Goheen said, of his years in Nassau Hall.

B. Franklin Bunn, only man to have been mayor of both Borough and Township, died peacefully at the age of 96.

Death came suddenly and tragically to William R. White, Republican candidate for Township Committee, who collapsed during a meeting of Committee on his 50th birthday.

A more violent death came to Laura P. Carpi, 37-year-old Princeton resident, who disappeared February 8 from her State Road home. Blood stains, a missing rug and, in June, a body found in the East River with a bullet-hole in the back of the head, brought the Carpi crime straight to the front pages.

Colin C. Carpi, estranged husband of Mrs. Carpi, was charged with her murder, freed on $100,000 bail, and indicted in August. His indictment was tossed out in mid-December: the judge ruled the grand jury should not have been told State Police had administered a lie-detector test. Mr. Carpi has denied his guilt.

Samuel De Cavalcante, Township resident frequently linked to organized crime, began in March to serve a five-year jail sentence for gambling conspiracy, was indicted in August by a Union County grand jury for alleged illegal acquisition of a pistol.

Crime in Princeton — the mugging of elderly women, breaking-and-entering of homes, purse-snatching, the disappearance of stereo sets, tape decks, hub-caps, television sets. Linked to addiction and the desperate need of an addict for money to buy drugs?

Accidents in Princeton occurred at a grade-crossing, a swimming pool, a curving highway. In March, two young women were killed at the Faculty Road grade crossing by the P. J. & B. dinky train. The same month, a six-year-old drowned in her grandmother's swimming pool. In September, a Peddie School teacher died in a crash on Bruere's Hill.

But heroism saved the lives of three students rescued from Lake Carnegie last January by a pair of high school girls (Heidi Faith and Ann Whitall) and a woman whose home is by the side of the lake, Mrs. Karl Hernquist.

And so . . . a safe New Year to all, as you lift a toast to 1972. It will be a lively year.

Is about to let go —
All that he needs
Is a shovel of snow!
Old Man '71 isn't going to bow out with his wish — the precipitation due Thursday is expected to be wet, not white, with both New Year's Eve and the first weekend of '72 likely to be marked by fair skies.
December is leaving us as the warmest 12th month of any year in the past 15. Temperatures have averaged above 40 degrees, with the entire year running well above normal in both total degrees and rainfall.

cial notification from the State Department of Education," said school board secretary William Evans this week.
Meanwhile, the New Jersey Education Association is saying flatly that teachers will receive retroactive payment of frozen salaries for the current school year.
Mr. Evans says he thinks Princeton will indeed have to pay its teachers their retroactive pay raises. Teachers contracts were signed in June.
Others on the staff, however, are in a different and more ambiguous position because some of the non-teaching contracts were signed after the wage-price freeze of August 15, Mr. Evans points out.

COED HELD 'CAPTIVE'
In University Dormitory. A 20-year-old Princeton University coed was held "captive" and robbed Sunday by two young men.
According to Borough police, the victim was asleep in her room at 6:25 p.m., when the two men entered her room and "more or less held her captive" for two hours. They took $16 from her wallet.
She finally escaped, Lt. Michael Carnevale said, by running out of the dorm and shouting. She managed to call the University Proctors' office, which in turn notified Borough police of the incident. Lt. Carnevale declined to identify the girl or the dormitory.
"We are reasonably sure the intruders were not university students," he commented. They carried no weapons. One was described as 16-17, 5-8, medium build, wearing a brown leather suede jacket, Levis and orange tennis shoes. The other: 18-19, 5-11, slim, short beard, wearing a long navy peacoat, light purple trousers, blue-grey body shirt and white tennis shoes. Both had Afro-style hair.
Lt. Carnevale said that the dormitory was unusually empty because of the holiday.

In another University dormitory, police report that a 20-year-old male student handed over $80 when an unidentified man entered his room at 5:40 Friday afternoon and demanded money. There was no physical contact between the two, Lt. Carnevale said.
Police picked up three suspects but the victim was unable to make positive identification.

FIRST LADY: Mrs. Barbara Smoyer, whose husband is a former Township Committeeman, will take office Saturday as the first woman to serve on that governing body.

RENTAL LAWS PASS
In Borough. Ordinances concerned with registration and inspection of Borough rental units were passed Monday night in a year-end round-up session of Council.
The first measure requires registration of all Borough rental units, in harmony with a state law passed in August of this year.

The ordinance originally provided for an annual registration, but as passed Monday night, it calls for registration one time only.
It was passed 4-1, Councilman Martin P. Lombardo voting "no." Mr. Lombardo pointed out that many Borough home-owners, particularly elderly ones, had illegally converted rooms into apartments against the zoning law and would be penalized by a registration requirement.
"We must re-examine the whole zoning question in this regard," he declared.

Change of Command. The second ordinance shifts responsibility for inspection from the Board of Health to the Borough Engineering Department. When Douglas Corlette, 220 Snowden Lane, questioned the right of the engineer to —Continued On Page 13

The London Critics Hail Jonathan Miller's production of "Julius Caesar" with the Oxford-Cambridge Shakespeare Co:

"The total effect, eerie and full of forebodings, is to give a new urgency to one of the most hackneyed of plays." — Daily Telegraph

"Remarkable! This production should certainly get a showing in London after its tour of American colleges." — The Financial Times

"Miller's version lucidly reveals the structural organization of the play and the clash of moral absolutes in which the characters are involved." — The Guardian

THE MIME HIMSELF: Marcel Marceau visits McCarter Theatre more frequently than any other individual artist, and his performances are always standing-room-only. He will be here the weekend of January 7-8.

News Of The THEATRES

MARCEAU IS BACK

For Three Shows, Marcel Marceau, the renowned French mime, will play three performances in Princeton when he returns to McCarter the weekend of January 7-8.
Both evening performances have been sold out for some time, but orchestra seats still remain for the 2:30 p.m. Saturday matinee.

Marceau holds McCarter's record for "most performances by any single performer," and every one has been sold out. He first came to Princeton in the fall of 1955 after his American debut in New York, and he has come back to Princeton on each of his six succeeding tours of the United States.

Marceau's latest film, "First Class," in which he plays 17 different characters, is now being shown in theatres throughout the country.

"PIRATES OF PENZANCE"

Tryouts Scheduled. Singing, dancing and acting auditions for this spring's production of "The Pirates of Penzance" will be held next Saturday and Sunday, January 8-9 in the Playhouse at Westminster Choir College.

The Gilbert and Sullivan classic will be presented at the end of April in the Kirby Arts Center of the Lawrenceville School. Arthur Lithgow is directing.

The production is an annual one for the Gilbert and Sullivan Association. Leading characters are the Major-General, the Pirate King, Frederic the Slave of Duty and Ruth the Pirate Maid of All Work. But in addition, there are choruses of dastardly pirates, doughty policemen and en-chantingly lovely daughters of the Major-General.

David Agler, of the Choir College, will be music director and Robert Jones, also on the Westminster staff, will be stage designer. Ruth Kaye
Walker will be choreographer, assisted by Janet Koenig. Ellen Armstrong is to be stage manager. Lee H. Bristol Jr., is president of the Gilbert and Sullivan Association.

For appointments to audition, telephone Amie Brockway at McCarter Theatre, 921-8588.

HAIL "CAESAR"

Oxford-Cambridge Production. Unanimous rave notices from the London critics greeted Jonathan Miller's unorthodox production of the Shakespeare "Julius Caesar" when it opened last month at Cambridge.

It will play two performances at McCarter next Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 p.m., and the box-office says that all the balcony has been sold out, and only orchestra seats remain for each performance.

Actors are young students in the Oxford and Cambridge Shakespeare Company. Critics had particular praise for the actors portraying Cassius, Brutus and Anthony.

Dr. Miller's unusual approach to the text drew praise from British critics. One noted that "Dr. Miller, like Brutus, sees the play as a phantasma, or a hideous dream. The total effect, eerie and full of forebodings, is to give a new urgency to one of the most hackneyed of plays."

"Miller's version brings out features which pass unnoticed in conventional productions," one critic observed. "It lucidly reveals the structural organization of the play and the clash of moral absolutes in which the characters are involved."

Another called the production "remarkable" and expressed the hope that the student company might be booked into a London theatre after its American Christmas-vacation tour.

CELLIST EXTRAORDINARY

Rostropovich. Now on his seventh tour of the American concert circuit, the Soviet cellist Mstislav Rostropovich will make a stop in Princeton for a McCarter recital next Thursday, January 6, at 8:30 p.m.

Works by Bach, Beethoven, Richard Strauss and Prokofiev will be featured.

Rostropovich, born in 1927, is the son of a concert cellist and the grandson of a cello teacher. He made his formal public debut at the age of 15, participating as cellist, pianist and composer in a concert given by major Soviet composers.

Both Prokofiev and Shostakovich, among other composers, have written music especially for Rostropovich. In 1967, the cellist performed a series of eight concerts in Carnegie Hall in which he played 34 works by 24 composers in the brief period of two weeks. The concerts covered the entire repertoire for the cello.

SKI!

With John Jay. From the unexplored glaciers of the Canadian Rockies to the densely populated ski-slopes of Japan (that's where the '72 Winter Olympics will be) — the John Jay film, "Ambassador of Skiing" covers the field.

"Ambassador" will be shown at McCarter on Friday, January 14, at 8 p.m., and John Jay himself will be there to see that it all goes well.

This new full-length color film shows aerial acrobatics in the sky on skis at Alta and Garibaldi, the world's Skibob championships in which experts from 11 countries hurtle off cliffs at 70 miles an hour on a ski bicycle, skiers who ski on grass with skis on wheels (and even on stilts), the simultaneous start of more than 300 skiers in the largest cross-country race in the United States, and the reunion of the Tenth Mountain Ski Troops, including rare footage of their actual wartime maneuvers.

Seats for "Ambassador of Skiing" are reserved, and are now on sale at the McCarter box-office.

AUDITIONS PLANNED

TRENTON CONCERT SET

Beverly Sills to Sing. The world famous soprano Beverly Sills will appear in Vincenzo Bellini's opera, "Norma," to be given at 8 p.m., Thursday, January 13, at the War Memorial Auditorium in Trenton. Featured with Miss Sills in the show sponsored by the Opera Theatre of New Jersey will be Antonia Kitsopoulos, Sergio Di Amorim, Lando Bertolini and James Morris. Alfredo Silipigni will conduct.

First produced in 1831 at Milan's La Scala, the opera is set in Gaul during the Roman occupation around 50 B.C. The role of Norma, which was first portrayed by Jenny Lind, Rosa Ponselle and other great singers, is called fiendishly demanding by critics. Miss Sills first triumphed in the role in Boston, in a performance hailed by "The New York Times" and "The Boston Globe."

Opera Theatre of New Jersey, originally the Opera Theatre of Westfield, was brought to Newark's Symphony Hall in 1968 by a group of opera lovers. The group attained stature when Mr. Silipigni joined as artistic director and conductor.

A graduate of Westminster Choir College and the Juillard School of Music, he made his debut at the age of 25 as conductor of the NBC Symphony at Carnegie Hall.

"We're a statewide company," points out Mr. Silipigni, "and although we're doing well in Newark, we're going to Trenton as an 'act of faith' in the future of our company in New Jersey."

Tickets, priced at $15, $10, $7 and $5 are available from Curry's Ticket Agency in Trenton, 394 5332.

PRINCE

$ (Dollar) now playing. This is a bank heist adventure film with Warren Beatty and Goldie Hawn. Richard Brooks directed the spoof.

The scene is Hamburg, a haven for dishonest money (apparently), and Warren Beatty aims to empty several of a bank's deposit boxes in spite of the highly sophisticated electronic equipment that guards it. There's a fortune from the Army PX swindles tucked away in there by a corrupt officer (Scott Brady) who has hit on a plan to smuggle her in inside baseballs. Other depositors include an American businessman (Robert Weber) who has been double-dealing on his tax returns; a gunman (Arthur Brauss) who transports pure acid in champagne bottles, and a blonde hooker (Goldie Hawn) who lists among her Johns two of the three criminals.

Hamburg, like Vienna in Carol Reed's "The Third Man," is a stunning and sinister locale for movie chases. The film moves at a hectic pace, and Warren Beatty again gives ample evidence of being one of the few charismatic stars in the films today.

enter a private house ("a man's home is his castle," he observed), Councilman John Strange explained that the present law has the same provisions. The new one merely transfers inspection duties from health officer to engineer. Gordon Griffin, Borough Attorney, explained that under court rulings, if the property owner will not permit the inspector to enter, a warrant must by law be obtained.

This new ordinance excludes units inspected by the state under its hotel-multiple-housing regulations, and excludes home-owners who rent while they are away for three months' vacation.

The measure passed 5-0. Councilman Joseph Moore was absent.

Princeton Disposal, the lone bidder, won a one-year garbage contract for $55,440. Written into the contract, for the first time, is an option clause opening the way for possible re-cycable collections.

A Look Back. Retiring Councilmen Alice Male and John Strange recapitulated the year's work, Mr. Strange citing Council's in-depth study of Borough personnel policies, housing inspection ordinances just passed, the "revitalized" and expanded (three to six member) Sewer Operating Committee and use of the compactor to replace the extinguished incinerator, as Borough accomplishments.

Mrs. Male spoke of work toward solution of drug problems and urged co-ordination and amplification of youth services by municipal government.

She also proposed expansion of the Welfare Department into a Social Services Department, and expressed the hope that "the stigma of welfare" can be removed.

"The library and recreation departments accused us of meddling in their affairs," she recalled with a smile, "but we showed them that there were community needs they were not providing. Now we have the Sunday library hours, even though we do not yet have night swimming."

Councilman Charles Cornforth, on the opposite side of the political fence from Democratic Councilmen Male and Strange, commented that "We are losing two good talents from Council, but not from the community."

PATROL CAR DAMAGED

Attempting U-Turn. A Borough patrol car was extensively damaged early Tuesday morning when it attempted to make a U-turn on Nassau Street opposite TOWN TOPICS.

The driver, Ptl. David Alston, who was alone in the car, was not injured. Chief Peter J. McCrohan estimated damage to the car between $1500 and $2000.

Ptl. Alston told him, he said, that he had attempted to make the sharp turn, shortly before 3 in the morning, to give pursuit to a speeding car heading south on Stockton. The patrol car jumped the curb, knocked down two parking meters and bent a light standard pole that illuminates a mini-park maintained by the Garden Club of Princeton.

There are no charges at this point, commented Chief McCrohan. Lt. Michael Carnevale is in charge of the police investigation of the incident.

TV SET, STEREO TAKEN

In Separate Thefts. A $300 color television set and a $300 stereo system were among items stolen last week in separate entries reported by Borough police.

Also taken from the 135 Bayard Lane home of Gordon F. Baker, in addition to the TV set, were a $30 clock radio, an Illinois Railroad watch and a few articles of men's jewelry. Police report that entry was gained some time during the weekend by breaking a rear window. Detective Timothy Huizing is continuing the investigation.

Besides his stereo system, Emmanuel Brookfield told police that between 50 and 60 records which he valued at $240 were taken from his apartment at 166 Witherspoon Street. A door was forced, police said. Detective Arthur Gallant is investigating.

Student Center Entered. Someone bent on larceny and vandalism entered the student center at Westminster Choir College. Police received a report of the entry at 9:06 p.m. Christmas day.

Three vending machines were broken and their contents and coins taken. Then, Lt. Michael Carnevale reported, 12 windows in the center were smashed with a hammer. A rear window leading to a women's rest room had been forced open to get inside, he said.

PARKED CARS ENTERED

Yield Stereo and Power Tools. Two men reported their cars entered and looted on Monday.

George Johnson, 160 Nassau Street, told police that he lost a tape player and four tapes, three bottles of whiskey and an Instamatic camera from his car parked in a rear lot at the same address. While Ptl. William Hunter was investigating, he discovered that a second car in the same area, also owned by Mr. Johnson, had been entered. The second car yielded a portable tape deck.

In the morning, Arthur Liese, 164 Nassau, reported that his car in the Park Place lot had been entered. He lost an assortment of power tools, including a sander, drill, saw and planer which he valued at $720. Police report that the thief broke a front vent window to get inside.

WORKSHOPS TO OPEN

At Studio-on-the-Canal. Janice Leefeldt, a student at Bennington College, Vermont, majoring in visual arts, is spending her non-resident term, instructing ceramic-sculpture at the Studio-on-the-Canal beginning January 10.

The tenweek term of workshops for adults, designed for beginners, will be held morning and evening sessions and Saturday morning for teenagers. Hand building, wheel throwing, glazing techniques and firing is offered for a limited number of registrants. Advanced students in wheel throwing who no longer need instruction may register for wheel practice on a monthly arrangement.

Miss Leefeldt has studied with Jill Lydenmeyer and Sue Coles at their studio in Holicon, Penna., and has worked in cooperation in the ceramic program at Bennington with Stanley Rosen. She plans to continue her independent work in hand building and wheel throwing into the future.

Rex Goreleigh's evening and morning workshop in drawing and painting, in all media, convenes for 12 weeks. Figure, portraiture and other subject matter will be included with individual instruction. Drawing and painting from the model will also be included in the Wednesday evening sketch sessions. The first hour will be directed towards quick sketches; a more concentrated study may be executed in the next hour, instruction in this workshop is optional.

A semi-private instruction workshop begins this year for the beginning student. Students may register for an afternoon or evening session.

Sculpture on Tuesday evening with Glenn Cullen individually instructing is again scheduled to begin a 10-week session, January 11. Emphasis will be placed on the full figure in clay or wax.

EXTENSION PLANNED

For United Fund. With $160,275 still needed to fund the approved 1972 budgets of 21 United Fund Agencies and the Red Cross, Fund officials have announced the extension of this year's campaign for an additional month, through January.

Although more money has been raised this year than was paid or contributed a year ago at this time, the current goal is $45,166, or 8 per cent higher than last year. A year ago, fund officials also found it necessary to extend the campaign into the new calendar year.

Funds presently in hand total $451,641, with results, by category, as follows: Research and Industrial: $183,744.55; Special Gifts: $136,241.76; Professions: $29,865.70; Mercantile: $5,154.50; Neighborhoods: $31,581.93; Colleges, Public and Independent Schools: $7,700; Building Trades: $2,529; Princeton Shopping Center: $3,148.92; Princeton University: $46,136.70; Management Planning and Data Processing: $5,420.29; and New Firms in Area: $115. Contributions may be sent directly to the United Fund, P.O. Box 201, Princeton.

DEVELOPMENT PLANNED

Of New Housing, Stores. If the plans of a Princeton developer are approved, garden apartments, townhouses and a small shopping center will be built on a 38-acre tract in Hopewell Borough.

Borough Council will hear the preliminary plans of David Denise, president of Hollander Properties, Inc., at its special year-end meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday. The developer hopes that all interested Borough residents will attend.

Bounded by Greenwood and Railroad avenues, the tract also has frontage on Broad Street, near the Princeton Bank and Trust Company branch office. The neighborhood shopping center would be constructed in the field next to the bank, according to the builder.

The townhouses, apartments and a community center are planned for the rear section of the lot. A recreation and park area would be developed on an adjoining 10-acre parcel located just across the Hopewell Township boundary line, Mr. Denise added.

Male Volunteers Making Inroads as Princeton Hospital Aides

That man checking off the menu for you at Princeton Hospital or pushing your wheelchair through the busy halls may be a retired banker, a former Rockefeller Foundation director or the senior partner of a Princeton insurance firm. And the young man assisting in the emergency room is probably a Hun School student who is considering medicine as a career.

Men, both the retired and the student, are making inroads on the former exclusively feminine world of hospital volunteer. About 20 men from Princeton and from Rossmore are serving three-hour stints, usually on weekday mornings. The 28 students from Hun serve in pairs every evening and in sets of six on Saturdays and Sundays.

"The Rossmore men go away in the winter, and the Princeton men go away in the summer, so they balance each other," Mrs. Deborah Livingston, director of volunteers says happily. "They are all regular, dependable volunteers who have gained the respect of the professional staff."

The male volunteers serve in the mornings as discharge couriers—helping with the rather lengthy procedure from hospital bed to car. They find in the men's service a good opportunity to talk with patients, and they are warmly welcomed.

At Merwick, Too. Some serve in the pharmacy in various non-professional ways, including an inventory control of packaging. From time to time, the men are assigned to assist in the development office. At Merwick, they spend more time with the patients, taking them to physiotherapy, to the recreation and dining rooms and out for walks on the grounds.

The program was sparked by a man from Rossmore, Harry M. Miller, retired associate director for medical and natural sciences at the Rockefeller Foundation. Knowing that the hospital aides are a corps of women and girls, he nonetheless asked Mrs. Livingston if the men could help. The delighted hospital devised a blue cotton polyester blazer with an emblem on it, and Mr. Miller (known as "Dusty") rounded up 15 men to serve.

"As it turned out, the word leaked through, and about a year and a half ago two Princeton men started with us," Mr. Livingston relates.

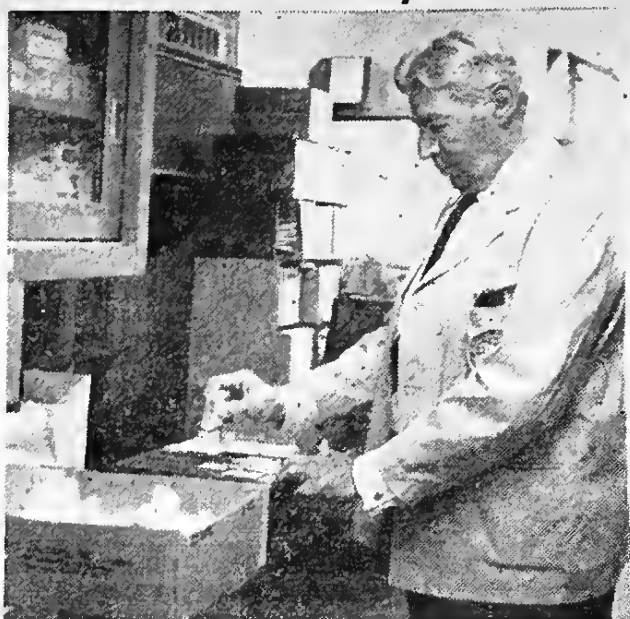

There are more Princeton men serving now, though still outnumbered by Rossmore, to the slight chagrin of some. "Patients will say to us, 'Oh, you're from Rossmore!' when we go into their room," James Carey says, "and we have to straighten that out."

The interest of Rossmore men and women has gone beyond serving as aides. The residents have set up a scholarship for the School of Practical Nursing, donated a dozen wheelchairs and given many books to the patients' library.

Toward Medical Careers. The work of the students from Hun covers different areas. For about a year they have been working from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the emergency room, on orderly duties and there is one stationed in the X-ray department. They serve on weekends in three-hour shifts beginning at 9 and 10 a.m.

"This is an experience for these young men who are thinking about going into medicine. The doctors are very interested in them and let them watch treatments in the emergency area," Mrs. Livingston reports.

The new area for handling emergencies will be five

ONCE A WEEK, Herbert C. Sturhahn serves for three hours on the Princeton Hospital discharge service. "Five other guys do it, so it is covered every morning by men volunteers."

times the size of the present space. In 1970, 24,000 emergency cases came through the swinging doors; by 1975, the hospital guesstimates 35,000 will be the total, serving as it does a population of 75,000 within a 10-mile area.

The hospital is exploring ways in which both male and female aides will be able to serve in the new emergency rooms. There will be a reception desk, staffed into the wee hours by volunteers stationed there to help people, to allay fears, make phone calls, offer a cup of coffee. Retired firemen and policemen with their knowledge of first aid should prove invaluable.

The emergency desk volunteers will be carefully trained, for they will be the greeters, the patients' and families' first contact with the hospital.

Princeton Hospital is always recruiting in a quiet sort of way. Aides move to other towns; they cope with emergencies at home; they go on vacations all seasons of the year. So, inquiries about the volunteer services will be welcomed.

WHAT'S ON THE MENU? "Gingerbread with whipped cream," hospital volunteer James Carey told Frank Ockenden of Grovetown, who was going home the next day and could trifle a little with sweet desserts.

University Plans to Cool Off Financial Pressure - And Buildings, Too

In a step to provide comfortable work-time temperatures while at the same time realizing substantial dollar savings, Princeton University will move in the coming week to adjust automatic heating controls in a dozen academic and administrative buildings.

Utilizing night set-back controls, which are installed but have not been systematically used in the past, temperatures will be lowered somewhat during non-working hours. "Available records indicate that savings in the order of tens-of-thousands of dollars are possible if our heating facilities are used effectively and only as required," according to Foster Jacobs, Director of the Department of Physical Plant.

The move follows a similar step taken recently in 21 dormitories, where daytime temperatures are now set, ideally, for 72 degrees, with a midnight-to-6 a.m. level of 65. Mr. Jacobs noted that in discussions with the Subcommittee on Planning, Plant and Properties of the Priorities Committee there was a "widespread" feeling that heat in many University buildings was currently maintained at too high a level during the daytime as well as at night.

Policy Experimental. Frankly experimental, the procedure will be instituted in the dozen buildings after individual discussions with each of the departments involved to determine use patterns. On the basis of results during the present heating season, consideration will be given to investing in additional night setback equipment for other buildings not now so equipped.

The practical impact for building occupants would be that the heat—presently maintained at a constant level 24 hours a day seven days a week—would be set back from 70 degrees to 60 degrees at night (and on weekends in some cases). Buildings affected will include Peyton Hall, the Woodrow Wilson School, Woolworth Center, East Pyne, Architecture, Dickinson, John C. Green Hall, part of Guyot, McCormick New South, Stanhope and Baker Rink, Stevenson Hall may also be included.

The levels are still well

"The purpose of this program is to reduce heating costs by eliminating unnecessary heating and wasteful heating practices," Mr. Jacobs explained. He said that past steam-use records and future studies will permit his department to evaluate the effectiveness of the program for the total campus.

Immediate savings for the buildings involved are seen as $17,000 annually. Additional savings from installing the same setback devices in buildings not now having them could amount to $75,000 annually, according to one estimate.

Because of the many adjustments in both the temperature and heating times, Mr. Jacobs suggests that all requests or complaints concerning heating problems be cleared through departmental offices and then forwarded to the Physical Plant Department.

"This will permit both the departments and the Physical Plant Department," he said, "to establish a unified policy concerning the temperatures and times facilities will be avoid wasteful heating practices."

CERAMICS CLASSES SET
At Stuart School. Instruction in introductory and advanced ceramics for adults and high school students will be held on Monday and Tuesday evenings from 8 to 10 p.m. at Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, beginning Monday, February 7. Those interested in working in ceramics should call the school, 921-2330, for an application blank.

Mr. Robin Wallack, Art teacher in Stuart's Middle School, will teach both classes. Mrs. Wallack has exhibited in the New Jersey State Museum in Trenton as well as at the Princeton Art Association.

The classes will be unstructured. Each student will receive individual attention and will work at his own level and pace. Hand building methods (slab, coil and pinch) will be taught in detail.

Students will progress from elementary shapes and forms to utensils, decorative items and realistic and abstract sculpture. Instruction will also be given in the mixing and proper application of glazes. No molds will be used.

Classes are open to all area residents and enrollment will be limited to a maximum of 20 per class. A minimum enrollment of 15 students per class, however, must be met in order to proceed with the course. The charge for one 10-week session on either evening will be $45 including materials.

FAMILY TO BE SUBJECT
Of Two Discussion Groups. The Family Service Agency of Princeton, in association with the YWCA is planning to lead two discussion groups related to family interaction and problem-solving in the family.

The discussion groups will concentrate on two developmental phases in the life cycle of the family; families of young children, (pre-schoolers) and families with adolescents.

Problem-solving is a universal task for all families. Effective problem solving, however, requires an understanding and sensitivity of the needs and developmental tasks of its family members, constructive patterns for expression and communication of concerns, ideas and feelings, and an atmosphere in which the stresses and conflicts related to problem-solving and decision-making are accepted and coped with.

These principles and conditions, however, do not occur automatically. A family needs to develop them as an integral part of their interaction and family functioning. The intent of the discussion groups will be to examine these principles.

principles, and how they can be achieved.

Family Service and the YWCA are therefore seeking the participation of parents with children of these ages who are interested in discussing the every day common developmental tasks and problems that are associated with these two age groups, and their impact on the family.

The two agencies are especially interested in involving parents who would be willing to share their experiences, to explore the commonness and universality of these situations, and to examine modes of effectively coping and dealing with them.

Leaders of the discussion groups will be members of the professional staff of the Family Service Agency of Princeton. Each group is scheduled to meet for five sessions. Both parents are encouraged to participate.

The discussion group, related to young children, is scheduled to start Tuesday evening, January 11 and will continue on a weekly basis through February 8. The family with adolescent group is scheduled to start on the evening of February 22 and will continue through March 21. Both groups are expected to begin at 8 p.m. and run through 9:30 p.m.

Registration for the groups will take place this Monday, and Tuesday during the regular YWCA Winter registration. There is a fee of $5 per person.

APPLICATIONS OPEN

For Summer Internships. The New Jersey Department of Community Affairs is now accepting applications from college and graduate students for its sixth consecutive summer interns in Public Service program.

The 11 week program will employ about 200 students in a variety of challenging public and community service positions throughout the State. Participants will work on a full-time basis from June 12 through August 25 in municipal, county, and State offices, anti-poverty, legal services and Model Cities agencies, programs to assist the aging, and some public oriented private agencies. In addition, seminars on public affairs topics will be scheduled during the course of the program.

The application deadline for summer internships is March 15. However, two-year law students desiring an internship with a local legal services office, the STATE Office of the Public Defender or the State Attorney General's Office have until April 1 to file applications.

All students are urged to submit their applications as soon as possible. Last year 201 students were selected from among more than 1,800 applicants for the program.

"The intern program seeks to encourage students to utilize their skills and develop their interests in the field of public affairs so that they will eventually apply their talents towards careers in the government and community service sector," said Community Affairs Commissioner Lawrence P. Kramer.

"At the same time, we are eager for these students to gain a better understanding of government from which they can benefit as private citizens in influencing governmental decisions."

Eligibility. Students regularly enrolled as undergraduate or graduate students at accredited colleges or universities are eligible to apply. Preference is given to New Jersey residents.

The legal internship portion of the program will be limited to students who have completed two years of law school in order to utilize a new State Supreme Court ruling which permits such students to plead civil cases within State courts. They should apply directly to the State Office of Legal Services for legal internships. Students who have completed only one year of law school may apply for a general internship.

In general, applicants must demonstrate an interest in some phase of public service, such as housing and urban development, general government administration, community work, or environmental protection. They must also possess skills or demonstrate evidence of experiences that can be applied in community and government service jobs.

There are no age, sex or marital restrictions, but immediate relatives of Department employees are not eligible.

Mrs. Christine Crews, a administrator of the Intern program, said, "We are seeking to attract students who excel in a wide variety of spheres, including academics, extracurricular activities, previous full or part-time job experiences and courses of study.

Selection Process. Mrs. Crews said job positions will be approved first; then students will be selected to fill them according to the students' experience and interests, their ability to perform the job responsibility and their geographic proximity to the job site.

If more than one student appears equally qualified for a position, final selection will be based on a brief statement, included in the application form, of the student's reasons for wanting to participate in the program.

Intern salaries range from $2 an hour for college freshmen (those who have completed their first year of study) to $3.25 an hour for graduate students. The salaries, based on the standard Civil Service pay scale for student assistants, are paid by the Community Affairs Department.

Applications may be obtained by writing to: Interns in Public Service, New Jersey Department of Community Affairs, P.O. Box 2768, Trenton, New Jersey 08625. Copies also are available at many college placement offices. Applications received after the deadline will be considered for the waiting list only.

ANTIQUES SHOW SET

By Wellesley Club The 13th annual Princeton Antiques Show, sponsored by the Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey, previews March 22 at the Princeton Day School with cocktails at 6 and a "pre-shop" look at the booths.

The wares of more than 30 dealers will be on display. Patrons and guests will have an opportunity to meet and talk with the dealers.

The Princeton Antiques Show has brought nearly $50,000 to Wellesley in support of the development needs as well as the May Margaret Fine Scholarship Fund which each year helps send one or more girls from this area to Wellesley.

Those interested in becoming patrons and thus being invited to attend the preview cocktail party with their guests may call Mrs. Hallett Johnson Jr., chairman of patrons, at 924-1514 before January 15.

LILIENTHAL ON TV

On First Person Show. David E. Lilienthal, of Battle Road, first chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, will be interviewed by Betty Adams on "First Person," scheduled by Channel 52 for 10:30 on January 4 and 6:30 p.m. January 7.

Mr. Lilienthal will discuss his belief that "anyone who has ever touched the atom is never quite the same again," according to the station. He is former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority and will discuss the controversy that arose around the TVA.

A widely known art historian, Professor Fong, 40-year-old native of Shanghai, China, was graduated from Princeton with the Class of 1951 and received both his M.F.A. and Ph.D. degrees here. Joining the Faculty in 1954, he advanced rapidly through Faculty ranks and was named a full Professor in 1967, the year after he had been made Honorary Fellow of the Institute of Advanced Chinese Studies, Taiwan.

Professor Fong, a prolific author in his areas of specialization and a Special Consultant in Far Eastern Affairs at the Metropolitan Museum in New York City, offers courses in Chinese art on both the undergraduate and graduate levels. He helped shape Princeton's pioneering Ph.D. Program in Chinese and Japanese Art and Archaeology, an inter-departmental enterprise combining Chinese and Japanese studies with the history of art and museum training.

Early January Games Vital to Tiger Quintet

Princeton University's promising basketball team, back from a brief Christmas break to practice daily for its meeting Tuesday with Michigan, will give clear indication of what its followers may expect for the balance of the season in the next four games it will play in Jadwin Gym.

The Tigers begin the new year with a major inter-sectional clash against the Wolverines, a Big Ten favorite with Ohio State, both of which have been nationally ranked this season. An 80-72 victor over Princeton when the teams last met at Ann Arbor two years ago, Michigan will test the Tigers to the utmost. In the six meetings between the two colleges, Princeton has won only once.

Although games with Fordham and Davidson are also on the January schedule, the Ivy season will claim the Tigers' full attention as soon as Michigan departs. In the space of five days, they will play host to the three teams which — with the Orange and Black — are expected to make the league battle a four way affair this season.

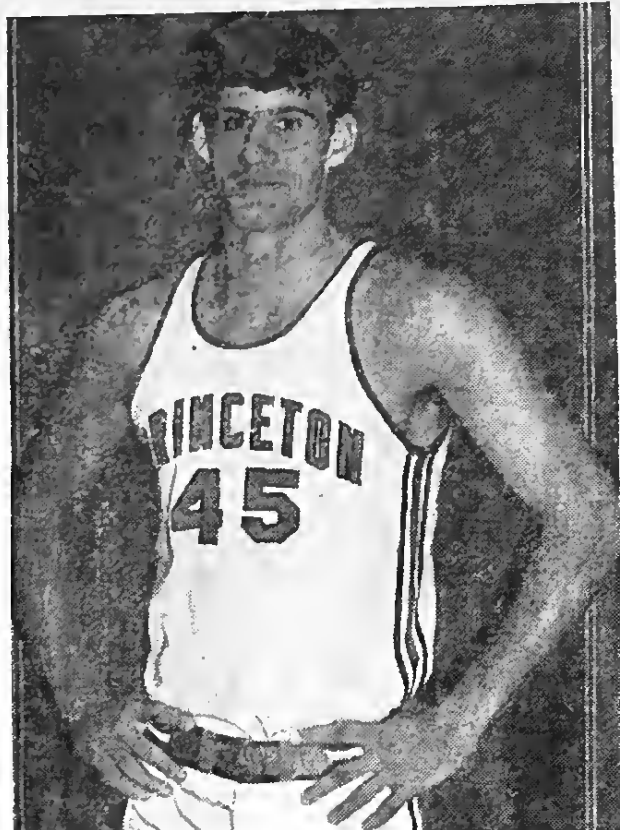

Harvard comes to Jadwin Friday night, January 7, followed by Dartmouth the next night. The two New England teams will be playing Penn at Philadelphia on the same road trip, and the defending champion Quakers come here Tuesday, January 11. About 9:45 that evening, the race will have begun to take focus.

Tigers Must Win at Home. While victory over Michigan — to go with the unexpected triumphs over North Carolina and Villanova — would be

The Jadwin Ticket Story

Tickets for Tuesday's Michigan-Princeton basketball game ($3) are on sale daily from 9 to 2 in the Jadwin Gym ticket office. There are currently plenty on hand, but the lure of a top Big Ten team making its first appearance here should draw upwards of 5,000 to the contest.

Tickets for the Harvard, Dartmouth and Penn games, to be played respectively on January 7, 8 and 11, go on sale a week before each contest is scheduled. With Penn only 50 miles away and defending the Ivy title, Jadwin's third sellout of the season that night seems likely. A strong Dartmouth quintet playing here on a Saturday night may also draw a crowd close to the gym's 7,550 capacity.

KEY MAN IN DECEMBER: The 127 points and 53% shooting average that Andy Rinnol has produced in his first eight games have been a major factor in Princeton's fine 6-2 record in the opening month of the basketball season. The 6-9 sophomore has outplayed seven of the eight opposing centers he has faced.

sweet to Princetonians, it is the trio of Ivy contests that the Orange and Black must win here to stay in the running. Teams which lose at home in tight races have eventually finished in first place, but with the competition as keen as it is this year, a defeat on the home court may be an insurmountable deficit. Of the three Ivy quintets due in Jadwin, Harvard figures to be the least difficult — only because the Crimson has had trouble getting untracked while Dartmouth and Penn have played some fine basketball. Harvard has, however, considerably better personnel than that which traded two-point victories with Princeton a year ago — winning, 62-60 at Cambridge before losing here, 76-74.

Dartmouth, a 20-point victor over the Crimson at Hanover in early December, has been playing its best basketball in more than a decade. Penn, upset by Temple after 40-plus consecutive victories in regular season play, is still the favorite for the 1972 title. Ivy League basketball being as uncertain a quantity as it is, Princeton could win all three of these games, or — quite conceivably — lose them all, despite its solid early-season showing.

If the Orange and Black returns to the form it showed against North Carolina, Villanova and California, it will stand a good chance of starting the Ivy race with a 3-0 mark. Since Penn is also likely to win both of that weekend's games at home, the outcome of the race will hinge on ability of one or more of the contenders to win on the road.

Victory in seven home games, plus triumphs a way against the weaker teams — Brown, Cornell, Columbia and Yale — would give each of the favorites 11 victories. One more key triumph on the road will guarantee a 12-and-2 season, and it will be surprising if 12-and-2 is not good for at least a share of first place.

Wilmore Worth Watching. Michigan's big gun is 6-3½ Henry Wilmore, who will bring a 25-point average into Jadwin next Tuesday. Coach Pete Carril's problem will be the selection of a player to guard him in the Tigers' man-to-man defense, a tough decision if it is not to be Brian Taylor, whose own 25-point average would be in jeopardy if he picks up fouls too quickly. The two stars will renew an acquaintance that began last summer in the Pan-American Games, where both were members of the U.S. team that Taylor captained.

Michigan has a 6-6 guard in Wayne Grabiec, who pairs with 5-10 Dave Hart in the back court. The Wolverines were 4-2 going into this week, their losses having come at the hands of Ohio University and Marquette.

Tigers Have Balance. The eight-game scoring statistics above show that the Tigers can stay with virtually any team they play if their three top scorers total their combined average (57 points) and the defensive performance matches their potential. Fifty-seven points plus no more than 14 from the other two starters and whatever reserves see action will get Princeton into the 70s, and a good defense can make that kind of figure stand up. Taylor is off to a fine year, averaging 26.4 and hitting on better than 60% of his shots from the floor. Rimol, the big surprise in that he has developed quickly against tough opposition, is a great 53% on field goal attempts and has shown the strong pair of hands that big men frequently lack. Princeton's rapid-fire passing, particularly on back-door plays in which Rimol is the pivot, raised hob with the opposition in the one-sided victories over Rutgers, North Carolina and Villanova.

Ted Manakas is right on his last year's average of 14 points, while Captain Al Duffy is likely to join this trio with a double figure average as the season progresses. Carril is still going with sophomore John Berger as his fifth starter, despite the latter's tendency toward quick fouls and his low point production. There were indications against Stanford that Carril's patience will pay dividends.

In any event, Reg Bird, whose agile guard play has been blending very well with his new-found poise, prefers the sixth-man role. His frequent steals have turned games around, and he has sev-

It could be that the Christmas break came along at just the right time. Even the first half of the season, from October through the holidays, can be a long stretch, and the final period of the Stanford game gave proof that the Tigers had temporarily lost their ability to control the action.

During the last six minutes of that contest, the Pacific Coast quintet outscored Princeton, 25 to 7, a pair of free throws by Manakas with nine seconds left barely giving Princeton an 88-85 triumph. Stanford does not figure to have the ability of the top three Ivy teams the Tigers will meet, so that a renewed degree of sharpness would seem to be essential.

Tigers can trim their hosts, whom Dartmouth has already defeated 8 to 1, they will meet the winner of the Air Force-Dalhousie College game on Sunday.

The Orange and Black lost to a pair of mid western teams in Cleveland last week to finish last in the Cleveland Cup Tournament. Bowling Green was a 6-4 victor over Princeton in the opening round, breaking away from ties of 2 all and 3-all.

The losers outshot their conquerors, 34 to 29, but the defense was inadequate again. Sophomore Walt Snickenberger, the leading point maker on the team with 11, scored two of Princeton's goals.

Next night, Ohio State won in overtime, 3 to 2. Down, 2-1, the Tigers drew even in the third period when sophomore Rich Hocking got the second of his two goals. The teams then battled into the extra period through six minutes and 35 seconds before goalie Ed Swift was beaten on an unassisted shot that developed from a steal near the Tiger cage.

Swift had 45 saves compared to 30 for the OSU goalie. Snickenberger was named on the line of the all-tournament team, the four goals that he and Hocking produced giving further evidence that if the upperclassmen could match the sophomores in productivity, the Tigers would be considerably better than 2-6 as the old year ends.

The tournament was won by Bowling Green, which defeated Yale, 5-3, in the finals. The Elis had a 3-2 lead after two periods but could not hang on.

HUN VS. HAMILTON

On Wednesday, The Hun School basketball team will resume its regular schedule following its participation in the Hightstown Christmas Tournament when it plays host Wednesday afternoon (Jan. 5) to Hamilton High School.

Hamilton is the only public school on the Red and Black schedule. Tapoff is set for 3:15 in the Hun gym.

PHS LOSES FIFTH

On First Quarter Surge. A 24-9 first quarter surge was all the springboard Hillsborough needed Friday to post a 51-33 victory over Princeton High School.

"We had five guys out there who forgot about teamwork and unity," snapped PHS coach Larry Ivan. "Give me the ball and I'll shoot." He benched most of his regulars for the remainder of the game.

Thus, no matter how well PHS fares in its two games in the Summit High School Christmas Tournament, it will begin 1972 with a losing record. And, unless the Little Tigers learn to curtail their excessive fouling and begin to play with some cohesiveness, the new year, like the previous four, may prove to be very long indeed.

PHS will start off with a Tuesday contest at Montgomery Township. A new school, Montgomery proved to be an upstart last year, as far as PHS was concerned, defeating the Blue and White each time in their two meetings. Tuesday's game will start at 4.

Can't Find The Hoop. Trouble bringing the ball up court, difficulty in finding the hoop — a liability that was to plague them throughout the contest — and that lack of teamwork combined to bring the Little Tigers down in the first eight minutes of play here against the visiting Hillsborough Raiders.

The remaining three periods were close (Hillsborough 27, PHS 24) but it was small consolation to Ivan, as he watched his team suffer its fourth straight loss and fifth in its six starts. Worse, the Little Tigers gave no signs of turning the corner.

Larry Miller led PHS with 10 points. Kent Bain had eight. Bob Worn, four. No one else had more than two. Dave Magaw led the Raiders with 29 points. The win evened the victors' record at 3-3.

Stan Kline to End Long Career Here on Friday

Shortly after dark falls on Friday, and Princetonians begin their plans for New Year's eve celebrations, the face of Nassau Street will change imperceptibly — particularly near the corner of Murray Place. Stan Kline, who has operated the Esso Station bearing his name since November 1, 1940, will retire.

Told by one steady customer that his kind of service — the friendly, dependable, low-charge approach to

a business relationship — is virtually irreplaceable these days, Stan's rejoinder was total disbelief. "The next guy who runs the station will be able to do whatever I have," he says, but those who have had experiences ranging from prompt road service on below-freezing days to repairs done a second time without charge if an inexperienced hand had fallen short of satisfaction, know that his departure will leave a very tough act to follow. Long before he came to

Stan Kline

Princeton to replace Al Raby as operator of the Nassau Street service station, Stan had been with Esso. He began as a clerk in the bulk plant in his native Flemington, when the horse stalls for wagon-drawn vehicles were still on the scene and gasoline came in cans.

Other towns—all in central New Jersey—were a part of his career: Frenchtown, Lambertville, Burlington in the early '30s, where he worked at a barge terminal on the Delaware; Trenton, as cashier in the district office, and then back to Burlington again, this time as superintendent of the bulk plant.

A 43-Year Career, when he leaves on Friday, Stan Kline will have been with Humble Oil for 43 years and four months, but it is typical of many big companies in this field that he will not take a penny with him in pension or any other form of retirement pay. "They do have a program along these lines now," Stan remarks, "one that I tried to persuade them for years to put in. But when they finally did, I was too old to be covered by it."

Stan Kline, whose sense of humor has made long days shorter for him and for those around him, laughs at this. Irony can be amusing rather than bitter, if that's the way you choose to look at life.

A space of more than four decades on the business scene requires survival of both the Depression and World War II, and with the crunch it put on automotive accessories and manpower, the latter was a constant challenge. For the four war years, Kline's Esso was a one-man shop. Tire repair was the ceaseless occupation. With new ones a fading memory as the years went by, old tires were reconditioned in whatever way was safe. The work was usually done at night and on Sundays, when the station was closed.

Gasoline stamps were required, of course, but as the civilian supply seemed to remain fairly steady, some stations sought to curry customer favor by not asking for them. "The only time I gave gas without stamps was to a service man home on leave," Stan recalls. Sometimes a driver would buy a few gallons and then announce, "I'm sorry, I've forgotten my book." There were times when Stan bought stamps to bring his quota up to the proper amount before a government inspection.

Retirement Plans. A ruptured disc in his back very nearly brought about Stan's retirement last spring, but despite a decision not to operate, his condition has improved, although there is still pain. The weeks away from his daily routine left time for thought, however, and gradually he came to feel that the current year's work should be his last.

"First," he will tell you, "I'm going to take a rest, and then maybe my wife, Edna, and I will go south for a little while." He has three hobbies: his grandchildren, landscape painting and fishing. Maine and Montana are his favorite states in which to fish.

Beset with inflationary problems, with the acute shortage in the field of qualified mechanics, and with company policies that tend to ride roughshod over the dealers, Stan is not leaving his life's work with unmitigated regret.

Among the problems he feels are virtually insurmountable from the dealer's point of view are gasoline price wars. One has been flourishing along U.S. 1 near Trenton for months. It has been having an increasingly adverse effect on sales in Princeton, and Stan thinks the long tacit agreement among stations here not to slash prices may soon be broken. That's one of the problems new management will face when the station opens Monday on a company-operated basis.

What he will miss when he begins retirement in his home in Hopewell next week are the people who have been his customers over the years. "They are the finest people on earth," he says simply. "They have made my life."

Cash Register Jingle Bells? It's Same Tune as Last Year

"We had zero percent increase over last year," was the resigned estimate of F. J. Worthington, manager of the Princeton University Store, as he checked out his Christmas shopping balance.

"I would say that Christmas was not up to our expectations this year—it was about even with 1970, which is essentially a drop of course, because of the price situation," Mr. Worthington continued.

He was, however, happy over a 15% increase in book-department sales, attributed to a new, enlarged, expanded, easier-to-browse department.

The Pacific Coast longshoremen's strike hurt the U-Store, because imports of Sony products from Japan were cut off and Sony is always big at this store.

People just aren't buying the big TV consoles of past years, Mr. Worthington adds.

Warm Weather Hurt. And he would have liked some ho-ho-ho snow and a few crisply cold Christmas-y days. That's the word from Zinder's too: "Unseasonably warm weather hurts, rather than helps. We'd have benefitted from a few snowflakes. But it was a healthy year for our toy business—a little better than last year, but not a record by any means."

Varsity Sports felt neglected by the weatherman, too. "Lack of snow definitely hurt. We did substantially better than last year, but it could have been even better." (This store moved into larger quarters earlier this year, and had expected that increase in sales.)

Another store that expanded (shy about being identified) reported business 10-12% over last year. And no complaints about the weather.

"Magnificent! Super!" is the exclamation from Thorne's perfume specialist, Dorothea Fretz. "Imports sold magnificently."

Another happy shop is Richards, the shoe shop. This establishment found that its more expensive, top-quality shoes did well.

Nordicraft, a shop celebrating its first Christmas, found the season a happy one. "Our gift items went very well," a Nordicraft owner said. Yarns and needlework stayed just about the same, but we were quite satisfied with the gift sales."

More Strike Problems. Happy House, the gift shop in the Shopping Center, was bruised by the longshoremen, just as the U. Store was. Attempts to divert shipments to ports like Montreal or Vancouver resulted in no merchandise at all, in some cases, reports owner Lawrence Huntress.

Normal re-orders in mid-October for late November delivery, were never made because the shop, minus merchandise, simply could not establish a pattern of customer buying.

"I would say it was a good Christmas, however, not a bad one," Mr. Huntress concedes. "but it was a late Christmas: the last day was our biggest. Usually the second Saturday before Christmas is the biggest, but this year was later than ever, and our more expensive merchandise is what moved late."

Furniture Went Well. A store not normally geared to heavy Christmas shopping—Nassau Interiors—had an "extremely good" pre-Christmas in October and November. "Better than 1970," is the report from owner Leonard LaPlaca.

Stock market softness affected Mr. LaPlaca's customers, but Nassau Interiors looks forward to a good year: "the 1971 North Carolina furniture market was the biggest in history, and we're ready," Mr. LaPlaca said.

TOWN TOPICS joined those reporting increased sales during the Christmas season. Space bought by advertisers in late November and throughout December ran substantially ahead last year, capping a trend that began with the first weeks of 1971.

In a broad comment on business along Nassau, one store executive said stores along "the street" suffer from not being open at night.

"Princeton isn't a night-shopping town, and the stores suffer," he observed. "I go to a basketball game—I see half of my customers. I go to a school board meeting—I see the other half. Parking is a headache, what with the Garden, Playhouse and bowling alley. It all has a definite effect on Christmas, in any year."

REVERSE SPLIT SET

By Applied Logic. A major recapitalization agreement and a one-share-for-five reverse stock split have been ratified by the stockholders of Applied Logic Corporation at the firm's annual meeting here.

The action substantially reduces the company's debt and changes the distribution of its ownership. The reverse stock split was essential to ratification of the recapitalization agreement under which major creditors have forgiven approximately 1.3 of Applied Logic's overall debt in exchange for common stock.

The remaining debt will be discharged out of positive cash flow starting in July 1972. The firm went public in 1969 at $25 a share, but the price dropped below $1 this year.

Most parties to the agreement will now become major stockholders and are represented on the firm's board of directors elected at the meeting. In addition, approval of the agreement releases new working capital, raised by Applied Logic through a private offering.

Customers Concerned. According to Martin T. Mobach, president and chief executive officer, "The company's financial position this year was viewed with concern by prospective customers. As a consequence, revenue growth was disappointing."

However, the company cut its outflow of cash from $5.2

million in fiscal 1970 to $1.0 million in fiscal 1971. Since the 1971 fourth quarter, ending September 30, the company has operated with a positive cash flow."

Mr. Mobach further stated, "With the recapitalization agreement ratified, several serious financial problems have been overcome and the company has a number of major positive factors operating in its favor. Ninety-five percent of our revenue comes through our direct sales organization."

The Associate (franchise) marketing activity has been virtually eliminated and our direct customers are paying their bills promptly. Equipment reliability and customer satisfaction are high. With unused equipment capacity, we are in a position to add substantial revenues without major capital expenditures."

PUBLIC OFFERING MADE

On Penn Corp. Stock. W. E. Hutton & Co. and Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan Securities Inc., as joint managers of the underwriting group, have announced the initial public offering last week of 451,051 shares of the Penn Corporation common stock at $15 a share.

Of the shares offered, 225,000 are being sold by the company and 226,051 by certain selling stockholders. The company will receive no part of the proceeds from the sale by the stockholders.

Net proceeds to the company from the sale of its 225,000 shares will be added to the company's general funds and will be available as needed for additional working capital and other general corporate purposes.

Penn Corporation, One Palmer Square, manufactures and sells diversified lines of proprietary consumer products. Product lines include: disposable decorated tableware for special occasions; packaged consumer chemical specialties for household and automotive use; and quality writing instruments for the advertising specialty market.

ACQUISITION MADE

By Princeton Data Services. Princeton Data Services, a business data processing firm, has announced the expansion of its operations with the acquisition of the payroll and keypunch services of Trenton-Nassau Service Bureau, Inc.

Announcement of the acquisition was made by John C. Van Cleve of Princeton, president of Princeton Data. The acquisition will give Princeton Data approximately 10 additional employees for a total of 30. The offices of the former Trenton-Nassau firm will remain in operation until Friday, when all business of the two firms will be consolidated at Princeton Data's facilities on Route 1.

Princeton Data has been in business for three years and serves clients in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The company does pre-packaged programming, custom programming, ballot tabulating, budgetary accounting, inventory systems, payrolls, mailing lists—a broad range of data processing services.

Princeton Data is also the owner of Key Data, Inc., a keypunch operation service which is a wholly-owned subsidiary. Directors of Princeton Data are Peter Murray, CPA, of Newtown, Pa.; Theodore Slosson of Hopewell, president of Princeton Data Film; William Oehsen, a Princeton attorney; William Bohm of Princeton Junction, an executive with the American Hotel-Motel Association; and Mr. Van Cleve.

FIRM FORMED HERE

To Offer Consulting Services. The Princeton Architectural Firm of Ewing Cole Erdman & Eubank has announced the formation of a new consulting firm, to be called Tecton, Inc. with offices at 10 Nassau Street. Tecton, Inc. was formed through the merger of the former Welsh-Hannafin, Inc. and Tecton, Inc.

The new firm will offer consulting services to private and public clients, institutions and the construction industry in environmental programming, long range planning, building systems analysis and industrialized construction techniques.

Welsh-Hannafin, Inc. was formed in 1964 to provide environmental programming and planning services to a wide variety of institutions and private clients and has been involved in over 250 planning projects. The original Tecton was incorporated in 1969 for the purpose of providing consultant services in system building analysis and industrialized construction.

Among the current projects are master planning studies for the Medical College of Pennsylvania and Philadelphia College of Textiles & Science, and a statewide systems building program for New Jersey's Department of Higher Education.

NOTICE

On December 15, 1971, the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors declared a prorated cash dividend of 30¢ per share payable January 3, 1972 to Shareholders of record at the close of business December 31, 1971.

Why Larry Ivan Quit as PHS Basketball Coach

Larry Ivan, one month into his fifth year as head coach of the Princeton High School basketball team, has submitted his resignation to PHS athletic director Norman Van Arsdalen. He will continue to coach until his successor is named, probably within the next two weeks.

Van Arsdalen acknowledged that he received a letter from Ivan the day before Christmas, asking to be relieved as soon as possible. In a meeting held Tuesday morning attended by school superintendent Philip McPherson, school principal Patricia Wertheimer, Van Arsdalen and Ivan, Ivan was asked to reconsider his resignation. He declined.

Accordingly, Van Arsdalen said that he will set in motion the procedure to find a replacement, which includes advertising that there is an opening. Any replacement, he added, "probably will come from within the school. We feel we have people right here who can fill the position very ably."

Van Arsdalen further acknowledged that the two leading candidates are Bill Cashman, the present jayvee basketball coach, and Marvin Trotman, who was named freshman basketball coach last week.

Cashman is reported to have indicated he is not interested in the job. Trotman is. Presently head lacrosse coach, Trotman said that he would certainly apply for the position. A player on PHS court teams in the early 1950s, he is regarded by many as the most outstanding performer ever to play for the Little Tigers.

Why? Why did Ivan quit? Although he admitted he was disappointed in the record of his team this year and in his previous seasons, he made it quite clear it wasn't the worst aspect that triggered his decision.

The straw that broke the camel's back, Ivan said, was the manner in which visiting coaches and teams have been treated at PHS. Conditions, he added, were so bad in Thursday's game with Hillsborough that the Hillsborough coach reportedly called his athletic director asking if he could leave without playing the game. He was told to stay.

Hurt More Than Anything.

"If you've got pride, if you're trying to build up a program... this hurt me more than anything," said Ivan. Other coaches, he said, had told him this year they would be willing to play Princeton again but only on their home court.

Among the conditions that prevailed for the Hillsborough game: lack of locker facilities — only three were reported open; the visiting team was allegedly the target of profanity from students as it went to the locker room; students would not leave the locker room to make way for the Hillsborough team; at half-time, PHS students were shooting baskets and refused to leave the floor when requested to by the Hillsborough players who wanted to warm up. Ivan, cloistered with his own team at the intermission, had to come out and shoot them away. "I've got enough on my mind," he commented, "than to try to be in two places at once."

In a pre-season scrimmage with East Brunswick, the wallets of the officials were stolen.

"You hang on, hoping for the better," Ivan said. "But win or lose a team should be treated with respect and courtesy. It hurts when things are not done the way they should be."

In contrast, he pointed out that when PHS traveled to J. P. Stevens High School, there were 17 janitors on duty. The locker room and gym were spotless, he said. "We were greeted very nicely."

Felt Like a Janitor. PHS, in turn, only has about three or four janitors, Ivan stated, although he said that he may be off some in his figures. "I'm the full time custodian of the gym. I feel more like a janitor than a coach," he said.

For years Ivan reported that he has been telling the school board that "we all felt we needed a full-time custodian for the gym. Nothing's ever been done about it."

Another thing that has hurt him deeply, Ivan reported, is that he hasn't been able to keep an assistant more than a year and a half. He lost Art Ware to Washington and Archie Freeman to Ewing, where they were offered more lucrative positions. Leonard Weister, his assistant coach this season, resigned December 17.

Asked if sports in general, as well as conditions, were on a downslide at PHS, Ivan paused and remarked, "Well, there's an ebb."

"It's not just here. It takes great teamwork to win in sports; schools require great teamwork to run. Anything does. There's too much of a 'me' attitude today."

What's Ahead. Ivan had his detractors — all they had to do was point to his 20-78 record — but he will be missed nonetheless. However one feels toward him, he is a dynamic person who forces one to react to his personality. "I gave it 100% all the time," he said.

Ivan, who was a varsity player at the University of Oklahoma (he once had to jump against Kansas' Wilt Chamberlain) and later a professional player with the Trenton Colonials, will continue as head track coach and head of the cross country team. He also plans to stay active in his "favorite sport" by returning to basketball officiating which he had to give up when he became coach. He has been a teacher at PHS for 16 years.

In the end, though, it was evident, he was leaving his coaching job, which he described as "one with a $1400 salary and a $1,000,000 in headaches" with reluctance. "If anything good comes out of my resignation, it will have been worth it," he said, keeping a firm grip on the one thing no one could take from him — his pride.

and Gary Olsen each had 14 for the losers.

SINKLER TO BE HONORED

By Football Foundation Here. Robert W. Sinkler, for the past 27 years a member of Princeton University's athletic training staff, will be honored by the Delaware Valley Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame on February 3 as 1972 recipient of that group's Amateur Award.

Irwin W. Weiss, Chairman of the Awards Committee, announced that the annual banquet, co-sponsored by the local chapter and by the Greater Trenton Chamber of Commerce, would be held at Barrett's Restaurant.

A native of Somerville, South Carolina, Sinkler was graduated from the Borden-town Industrial School where he was active in campus affairs and in athletics. He served for three years during World War II as a staff sergeant in the 429th Medical Ambulance Battalion.

Since 1945, he has been closely associated with collegiate athletics as one of Princeton's training staff. In addition, Sinkler has been a part-time physical education instructor at both Witherspoon School and St. Paul's School in Princeton. He is a member of the Princeton-Princeton Township Recreation Committee and was, for 20 years, a director of playgrounds during the summer months. Sinkler also served for three years on the Governor's Recreation Committee.

The honoree earned his New Jersey certificate as a registered Physical Therapist and is currently taking night courses at Rutgers leading to a bachelor's degree. He is married to the former Phyllis Fury of Boston, Mass. and is the father of three daughters—Joyce, a teacher in the Witherspoon School; Carol, a student at Jamestown College in North Dakota; and Ellen, a student at Chamberlain College in Massachusetts.

Weiss, in announcing Sinkler's selection, said: "He has an unblemished reputation for honesty and integrity in his professional and personal life. Because of his close contact with youth from elementary grades through college years, his effort to promote athletics as a wholesome and integral part of the educational process, his desire to instill the ideals of sportsmanship in both player and spectator, and his encouragement of injured athletes during their recovery period, the Delaware Valley Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame is proud to present its 1972 Amateur Award to Bob Sinkler."

SUMMIT TOPS PHS

In Christmas Tournament. Unbeaten and 13th-ranked in the state, Summit High School ran up a 14-3 first period lead and then breezed to a 70-49 triumph Tuesday over Princeton High School's basketball team in the Summit gym. As a consequence, the Little Tigers were scheduled to play this Wednesday evening the loser of the St. Mary's-Essex Catholic game — the two other teams in the tourney.

Tony Bailey led PHS with 14 points. Ken Bain added nine and Craig Robinson, seven.

LAWRENCE RIPS HUN

In Hightstown Invitational. Led by Al Hicks who poured in 24 points, Lawrence High School easily defeated Hun, 82-53, Tuesday night in the first round of the Hightstown Basketball Tournament. Hun was scheduled to play Pemberton this Wednesday night, which lost to Hightstown in the second opening-round game.

Kevin Tylus, 18 points, and Biff Hollowell, 14, were the only Hun players to score more than seven. At halftime, Lawrence, which owns a perfect 5-0 mark, led, 43-23. Hun saw its record dip to 0-4.

PDS IN TOURNEY FINAL

Against South Hunterdon. A two-point victory, its third win of the season in as many games, put the Princeton Day basketball team into the finals of the New Hope Invitational Basketball Tournament. Thursday, the Panthers will meet South Hunterdon (2-2), which whipped Morrisville, 60-47.

Mark Ellsworth sank two free throws with 12 seconds left in the game to give the Blue and White a 56-54 triumph over New Hope (1-6). A fine first quarter, during which they scored 21 points and built up a seven-point lead, gave the Panthers an advantage they never relinquished.

Ellsworth finished with 20 for the game, followed by Steve Bash with 11 and Ron Webster with 10. Hardy Bush

ECOLOGY in Princeton

RECYCLING, 1972 STYLE
About the Future. Many people, apparently under the impression that the Conservation Coalition just got tired and walked off the job, have asked us why it discontinued the Recycling Program. The answer bears repeating, particularly in view of the superb job done by the purely volunteer group: the Coalition intended the program from the beginning only as a temporary measure designed to encourage and facilitate municipal recycling. Apparently they have been successful, as both Borough and Township have been enthusiastic about taking over.

Governmental wheels do not turn fast — and there are many problems to be solved, such as where to locate a Township collection point — but there is every hope that March will see the municipalities take up where the Coalition left off. (Incidentally, if you are the proud owner of a large, conveniently located piece of black top, come forward! The Township would welcome site suggestions.)

Once Over Lightly. For those who have missed them, we'd like to repeat a few of the bits and pieces we've covered in this monthly effort during 1971, with current comments where appropriate. The next column will follow up on the State of the Environment in terms of laws passed, pending and needing pushing. Spring will see a brief repeat of seasonal items.

"One ton of newsprint represents about 17 trees. Recycling a stack of newspapers about 36 inches high saves one tree. Recycling a ton of newsprint also eliminates a major portion of the pollution associated with producing new pulp. (Paul Swatek, "The User's Guide to the Protection of the Environment.")

One survey shows that, at the present rate of consumption, by the mid-1980's there will be more trees cut annually than will be reseeded. The Rescue Mission in Trenton will take newspapers till the Recycling recommences.

"High speed ground mass transit systems are essential to reduce air pollution and provide employment. Governor Cahill has made some good moves in this direction. Let's encourage and support him." IN WRITING.

"Our local Water-Saving Department, the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association, goes about the business of protecting and improving water quality in many interesting ways, including developing a training program for teachers... and it has harnessed the traditional energy of the young...from area colleges, high schools and Scout troops into an 'Adopt-a-Stream' or Micro watershed program." This burgeoning program is fascinating and constructive. For information on how to get your young involved, call the Association at 737-3735. For a condensation in print on how the program operates, contact us through TOWN TOPICS.

area water supply is limited ...CAN WE AFFORD TO USE WATER ONLY ONCE? If the answer is no (and it is), will we then bring to bear the imagination and willingness to search for ways of re-using it? There is no final answer (according to Watersheds Association Director, Ian Walker)...as long as the area grows, there must be an endless series of daily decisions...to make those decisions we need the combined know-how of experts in various fields...and to insure that the decisions are made, we need a concerned government and a aware citizenry."

The recent hearings on the regional sewer and the decisions made by the Sewer Authority are all part of the water picture; and they brought out the need for imaginative and innovative thinking. The number of citizens present, though articulate, was not large enough to match the importance of the subject.

"The Gypsies (moths) are coming...Look for the egg cases which are a light to darkish brown, roughly up to an inch in size, covered with a velvety fuzz on tree trunks, branches, bushes, rocks...remove and BURN them." After writing this we were visited at home by a bright young man from the state Department of Agriculture. He showed us where and how to hunt for the egg masses (under dead and peeling bark is a favorite hangout), all too successfully!

Some of our finds are at the Whole Earth Center, 360 Nassau Street, so any would-be hunters can see samples of what they are looking for. We suggest egg mass hunts as a challenging outdoor activity for the young between now and April, when they hatch.

"The Doctors at a top-flight veterinary hospital in the area are rabidly against the use of flea collars on dogs and cats. They maintain that the chemical contained in the collars, Dieldrin, can be highly toxic to the animals...can cause degeneration, general ill health, non-specific illness and sometimes death."

"Use non-phosphate detergents or soap and washing soda. While probably not the only cause of eutrophication (filling in with algae) of lakes and rivers, phosphates are a major factor."

Recent governmental pronouncements on phosphates have so confused the public that there has been a throwing-up-of-hands sort of reaction from many. We're with those who believe that, if you are the parent of detergent-eating young, you should use low-phosphate detergents.

If your young have a more selective diet, stick to the non-phosphates. (If you're worried about having a nuthing the least bit caustic in your house, you'd better throw out most of the contents of your cleaning closet, workrooms bathroom shelves, many plants with berries and leaves, etc.)

Phosphate-removing machinery will undoubtedly be a part of our future, meanwhile, why add to water pollution while we wait?

"The easiest and most rewarding form of 'putting it back' for anyone with even a little plot of earth is composting. To describe the various ways of doing this would be impossible here. Details can be obtained from Rodale Press, Emmaus, Pa. 18099." We include this suggestion so that those "long winter evenings" so proverbial in gardeners' lives can be spent planning your compost setup.

May our earth be more peaceful and less polluted in 1972!

BOWLING NOTES

Tufano 264, Marcolini 257. Vince Tufano of Grover Lumber rolled a 264 last week in the Nassau League to edge Otto Marcolini of Kingston Wing & Liquors for high-game scoring honors. Marcolini rolled 257.

A) Toto of First Aid enjoyed one of his best nights ever at the Princeton Recreation Lane, rolling 208-187-199-594. Ernie Hunt and Ed Duncan, teammates of Tufano, had 222 and 210. Between 213 and 200 were Charles Perpetua Jr., Tony Amalfitano, Jerry Perpetua, Jim Shely, George Luck and Jim Carter.

Next week is bumper night to mark the end of the first half. Hinkson's and Hinds' Carting, tied for first place with 61 points each, will play each other, while Tiger Garage (60) the only other team with a chance to win, takes on fourth-place Grover Lumber.

Robert Statts with 226 and Bip Davison with 222 were the only two to better 200 last week in the Tri-County Firemen's League. Kingston and Dutch Neck had to postpone their match to fight a butane fire behind Good Time Charley's in Kingston.

In the 190s, were Frank Reading, Leslie Luck, Ted Wagner, Ken Fowler, Art Parr and Fred Lauoe. Hook & Ladder has 54 points and the lead, followed by No. 3 and KFD — tide for second at 52 apiece.

Nini Plymouth is back on top in the Business Women's League, aided by a 169 from Sue Schilling who rolled 169—52 pins over her average. Nini has 58 points.

JOHNSON COOKIES WIN
On Bear Mountain. On December 11, Philip and Ilse Johnson gave a Christmas cookie demonstration at Gallery 100, baking highly decorative and unusual cookies in a little portable electric oven set up on the jewelry counter.

The crowds who lingered to watch will want to know that national judges have concurred with their admiration. Philip Johnson received first prize for his gingerbread elves and giraffe at the annual Bear Mountain Christmas festival.

Mrs. Johnson has been invited to take part in the CBS Network show, "Patchwork Family" which will premiere on Channel 2 on New Year's Day. A member of the Trenton State College faculty, she is a wellknown potter in this area whose ceramics are often on view at Gallery 100. The CBS show is a child education vehicle underwritten by Rutgers University, offering various specialists in the arts and sciences. Air time is 7 to 8 on Saturdays and 8 to 9 on Sundays.

Other artists at the Gallery this Christmas season include a brass quartet which offered a program of traditional carols on the past two afternoons before Christmas. Players were Marguerite Nelson, baritone horn; Mike Lemonick and Larry Wright, trumpets, and Chuck Ashton, trombone. All were home from college for the holidays.

Obituaries

Samuel Reber, 68, of 13 Campbellton Circle, died December 25 in Princeton Hospital after a brief illness. He was a Foreign Service career officer, whose last post before retirement in 1953 was Acting High Commissioner for Germany.

A graduate of Harvard in the Class of 1926, Mr. Reber spent his entire career in the State Department. His first foreign assignment, when he had been with the department for only a year, was as vice consul in Callao, Lima, Peru. He was then successively charge d'affaires in the legation at Monrovia, Liberia; a member of the League of Nations commission on Liberia, and secretary of the United States delegation to the General Disarmament Conference at Geneva.

In 1935 and 1936 he was technical adviser to the United States delegation at the London Naval Conference. He was secretary of the Embassy at Rome and then returned to the State Department for three years. He was thereafter assigned to Martinique, a post as a member of the Allied Military Mission to Italy and as deputy vice-president of the Allied Control Commission in Italy.

Mr. Reber was an aide on a special mission for President Roosevelt in North Africa in 1943 and served in 1944-45 as political officer for Supreme Headquarters of the Allies in Paris. He was political advisor to the United States delegation to the Council of Foreign Ministers Conference in Paris in 1946 and deputy director of the Office of European Affairs in the State Department in 1947.

Mr. Reber then served as United States deputy to the Council of Foreign Ministers for Austria, where he played a key role in shaping the present Government. He then became Acting High Commissioner for Germany, his last post in the Foreign Service.

A brother, Maj. Gen. Miles Reber, U.S.A., retired, survives.

A memorial service was held in Trinity Episcopal Church, with interment in Arlington National Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Mather Funeral Home. Memorial gifts may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Elton E. "Tad" Wieman, 75, of Portland, Ore., and Lake Arrowhead, Calif., died December 27 in Portland. He was former head football coach at Princeton University.

A member of the college football Hall of Fame, Mr. Wieman began his career as a player at Michigan and later became a coach there. He was named head coach in 1929, later moved to Minnesota and then came to Princeton as line coach in 1932 as

A few words
from Phil Cane
on behalf of cheating
at antiques.

There are two ways of getting the antiques you've always wanted: find them or make them. Our way is to make them. For several reasons.
We can concentrate on museum-quality pieces. We can coordinate them with upholstered pieces and hand-crafted accessories. And we can create custom pieces to match your particular dream.
(Thomas Jefferson didn't own a stereo. But you can own one that he'd like the looks of.) We've filled a showroom with creations and re-creations you'd like.

Hutch table. Colonial answer triple-duty beauty: top down, it's a table; top up, it's a seat; under the seat, you get storage.
